Flippin Resigns as Athletic Director; Six Mentioned as Possible Successors

Royce N. Flippin Jr., director of athletics at Princeton University for the past six years, will leave his post next March to assume the vice presidency of MBA Resources, an executive search firm with offices in New York City and Chicago that specializes in recruiting executives to fill senior and middle management positions.

The search for a successor to Mr. Flippin will begin immediately and will be coordinated by Anthony J. Maruca, vice-president for administrative affairs. He will consult widely with representatives of the many groups, on and off campus, who share an interest in Princeton athletics.

Royce Flippin Jr.
An Agonizing Decision

As was the case when Bob Casciola departed last year as football coach, speculation on Flippin's successor began simultaneously with announcement of his resignation. Half a dozen names came immediately to the forefront, more will follow:

Carmen Cozza, Yale's highly successful football coach whose name was included a year ago among Casciola's possible successors. Cozza is in all likelihood not a candidate now in his own thinking, but same day that Flippin said he was leaving, the New Haven Register called Princeton's Department of Sports Information to discuss such a possibility.

Cozza actually served as Yale's director of athletics for about a week—before he decided that coaching was still for him and someone else could have the desk job. That someone else turned out to be Frank Ryan, the former Cleveland Browns' quarterback, and reports reaching here are that Cozza's relations with Ryan are such that he might be happy with a change in jobs.

Homer Smith '54, the standout Princeton fullback whose career as Army's football coach is at an end, following the expiration of a one-year contract and the 28-0 defeat Saturday by Navy. Smith, too, was mentioned as a possible replacement for Casciola.

Bob Casciola, himself. The man whose five-year contract was not renewed on Flippin's decision in November, 1977, is now an officer of First National State Bank of New Jersey. Casciola's great popularity with many on the Princeton scene is responsible for inclusion of his name, but his becoming successor to the man who fired him may be a development the University would prefer not to create for itself.

Pete Carril, the highly-successful basketball coach for the past 11 years whose overall capabilities and forthright approach to both personnel matters and

Institute's Plans for Marking Einstein Centennial In March Expected to Bring President Carter Here

The celebration next March of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Albert Einstein will serve to launch the Institute for Advanced Study on a new policy of what Institute Director Harry Woolf calls "outreach."

President Jimmy Carter has been invited to address the final session of the Institute's celebrations, although Institute sources say he has not yet formally accepted.

It will be a dual celebration because in 1980, the Institute will mark its own first half-century. The happy confluence of these two anniversaries gives the Institute more time in which to celebrate and therefore more opportunities to let the public know what's happening out there on that remote campus.

"Einstein was our first professor—our first was already at the top of the mountain!" Dr. Woolf remarked in a recent interview, "and the Einstein centenary is a kind of spectacular, to launch our outreach."

- Plans are being made for a symposium, lectures, concerts, nationwide exhibits, a commemorative stamp.

- Princeton University and the Smithsonian Institution have accepted invitations to join Einstein projects.

- What Dr. Woolf calls "a passel of Nobel laureates" and heads of universities and academies from all over the world are being invited to Princeton to participate.

- It will be a year-long commemoration of Dr. Einstein and his work, culminating in the Institute's golden anniversary celebrations. These celebrations have their own projects, leading off with formation for Princeton area residents of a "Friends of the Institute."

"Outreach" until now has not been an Institute policy. As Dr. Woolf points out, there is a certain "mystery"—which indeed the Institute wishes to preserve—about research into the arcane realms of mathematics and physics and the loftiest reaches of historical and social research.

But the everyday world isn't far away. And quite frankly, the Institute needs money. "Financial fragility" is a term sometimes used in Fuld Hall.

This might be a good place to explain that the Institute for Advanced Study does not have and never has had any connection with Princeton University.

The Institute was founded in 1930 by a gift of $5 million from Louis Bamberger and his sister, Mrs. Felix Fuld. A legacy from the two founders strengthened the financial base. Today, the Institute's endowment amounts to $55 million. About 80 percent of the $6.5 million annual operating budget is covered by the return on investments. Grants, contracts, contributions by corporations and individuals add to the whole.

However, it's the familiar story of the '70s: the rate of increase of endowment funds hasn't kept pace with everything else.

"We're still in relatively good shape," Dr. Woolf says, "but inflation has begun to erode."

The Institute isn't the kind of place that can count on substantial alumni contributions, nor does it have extensive support from the Federal government and private agencies. The goal is an increase in the endowment by 1981 of at least $10 million—more likely $20 million.

The Institute's 23 permanent faculty and some 200 visiting members are, in Dr. Woolf's words, "a fascinating, curious population."

This academic year, they represent 81 universities in 15 countries, and 88 of the visiting members are under the age of 35.

Visiting scholars come to one of the Institute's four schools: mathematics, natural sciences, historical studies and social science. Although the Institute was focused exclusively on mathematics in the beginning, today's scholars write books on "The Papacy and the Levant" (Kenneth M. Setton) or "The Philosophy of the American Revolution" (Morton White), as well as on physics and mathematics.

"It's a community of scholars," says Dr. Woolf.

Visiting members may be young, but they are not fresh out of school. They have made enough of a mark to be noticed by the Institute. An invitation goes out, or they apply on their own.

"Talent is not restricted to the Ivy League," the director says with just the trace of a smile, "and we're constantly surprised and pleased that people come to the Institute from places we've never heard of, and walk here as peers with the others."

What do they do all day?

A walk through Fuld Hall shows what appear to be small classrooms and Dr. Woolf speaks of "faculty" but there are no "classes" as such, no formal curriculum, no laboratories, indeed no commitment on the Institute's part that all branches of learning be represented.

"We ask a sharing, in an unassigned manner," is Dr. Woolf's way of explaining it. "Some visitors organize seminars. One may announce a series of three lectures. Others may say all they want to do is 'lock myself in my study and write.' No short-term accounting is required."

Although no visiting scholar is a "student" in the narrow sense, many are still what might be called "apprentices." This means that the tenured faculty is involved in a fair amount of post-doctoral training.

But permanent faculty, who have tenure until 70, are free to decide the extent of their working relationship with the visiting members and how that relationship may fit in with their own research.

Visiting members and permanent scholars alike live, not solely on an ivory-towered campus, but in the Princeton community. Dr. Woolf talks about alumni letters that come back from all over the world—what a pleasure that the kids didn't lose ground in school while they were in Princeton, what a pleasure to find the children's English honed to such a nice edge, and so on.

"Princeton teachers have told us that Institute kids from other countries are one of the most exciting components of teaching," Dr. Woolf remarks, "We produce a stimulus, for kids already living here."

The Princeton community in its turn, has found the Institute an agreeable neighbor. Families from administrative problems are widely admired. A part of the speculation involving his name reports that, if offered the job, he might ask to split it for a least another three years with coaching basketball, and that the University administration may not prefer a part-time director of athletics for better than a third of the year.

Arthur E. Robinson, Associate Director of Athletics for Business Affairs under Flippin. A Rutgers graduate, Robinson originally came here as lacrosse coach when Ferris Thomsen retired. He moved from that and assistant football coaching assignments into administrative duties in Jadwin Gym, and has been there on a full-time basis for the past two years.

G. Arthur Hyland, Jr., the Princeton basketball captain of the Ivy League champions in 1963 who is now assistant to the commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, headquartered in Centerville, Mass. His experience in that capacity would provide him with excellent background for the task here.

Out of consideration—at his own volition—is Samuel C. Howell, the associate director of athletics. He had been among those seeking the position six years ago.

With Flippin planning his departure in March, if the transition can be properly effected by then, a choice within the next two months is the target, to permit several weeks' time for the new man to work with his predecessor. Of the six whose hats have first gone into the ring—without necessarily having been tossed there by their owners—Cozza appears the most unlikely because on belief exists that a candidate with Princeton background is best suited for the job.

If it goes to a non-alumnus (Carril graduated from Lafayette), it would be the first such selection in the history of Princeton athletics. From Howard McClenahan '94 and George R. "Joe" Murray '93, the first athletic administrators at Princeton, through Charles W. Kennedy '03, Asa S. Bushnell '21 and R. Kenneth Fairman '34 (Flippin's immediate predecessor), class numerals have always been attached to the name of the Tigers' director of athletics.

The announcement of Mr. Flippin's resignation, which he said he had accepted with "extreme regret," was made by President William G. Bowen. "Royce Flippin has brought to a difficult and demanding assignment a rare combination of dedication, enthusiasm and strong leadership," Dr. Bowen said. "He has understood and advanced the best interests of Princeton Ivy League athletics, and he has contributed greatly to the development of what is widely regarded as one of the most successful athletic programs in the country, with strong emphasis on intramural, recreational and health fitness programs, as well as a wide array of highly successful intercollegiate and club varsity teams. The university is very much in his debt, and we wish him well in the important new position he will be assuming in the spring."

A Princeton graduate in the Class of 1956, Mr. Flippin told a press conference last Thursday that the decision to resume his professional business career after six years of service to Princeton had been "an agonizing one because I've enjoyed my work here so completely, including its many associations and friendships. On the other hand," he added, "it is timely for me to think about long-range professional goals and opportunities and the invitation to join MBA Resources, a dynamic and successful organization, had more appeal than I could resist."

Mr. Flippin, whose own football and baseball achievements in the mid-1950s constituted an exciting chapter in the history of Princeton athletics, was named director of athletics and physical education effective January 1, 1973.

During his tenure, student participation in athletics -- both in terms of percentages of the total enrollment and in actual numbers -- has reached an all-time high. Women's sports, especially, have shown dramatic growth in recent years; Princeton women now compete in 10 intercollegiate and seven club varsity sports.

In 1977-78, for an unprecedented third consecutive year, Princeton teams achieved the highest Ivy League winning records in overall competition for both men's and women's intercollegiate athletics as well as in men's Ivy League competition. In overall men's .631 winning percentage while Harvard finished second with .603. In formal Ivy and Eastern league play, Princeton produced a .654 winning mark to the Crimson's .612. Princeton women produced a .699 winning percentage to edge out Harvard (.691) and Yale (.678).

He is married to the former Louise Ferdon of Upper Montclair, a graduate of the University of Delaware who received her master's degree in special education from Queens College in 1970. They are the parents of three children: Diane, 21; Royce 3rd, 20, a junior at Princeton University; and Robert, 17, a senior at Princeton High School. They live at 138 FitzRandolph Road. Mr. Flippin said a decision as to whether he will continue to live here and commute to his office has not yet been reached.

Largest Drug Arrest on University Campus Jails 22 in Dormitory Raid Early Friday

In what is described by police as the largest drug arrest ever in Princeton, 21 Princeton University students, including a 17-year old juvenile, and a former student, were seized in a pre-dawn raid Friday morning. By 2:40 Friday afternoon, all had been released on bail; all are scheduled to appear in Borough court December 20.

The raid was the culmination of a two-month investigation by the Borough police department and the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office. The 38 police charges that followed range from sale and distribution of LSD and cocaine to possession of hashish and marijuana. Ten of the 21 students were charged only with offenses related to marijuana.

Bail ranged from ten percent of $15,500 to $500; some of those arrested were released on their own recognizance after being issued a complaint summons. The raid occurred a year to the day after a similar drug raid on campus in which eight were arrested.

Chief Michael Carnevale of the Borough, who initiated the investigation, reported that hours before the raid took place one of those arrested had sold $1,000 worth of cocaine to an undercover agent. When he was arrested in a Green Hall laboratory -- the only one not apprehended in a dormitory -- he had $2000 in his possession, police said. $1000 of which he had received from the undercover agent.

He was identified as Brian M. Castle, 19, of 233 1942 Hall. He was charged with two counts of distribution of cocaine. His bail was the highest set.

Among those arrested were seven seniors, seven juniors, five sophomores and two freshmen. All were males with the exception of an 18-year old Henry Hall student.

Not Told of Investigation. University officials were not told about the investigation or raid in any way, Chief Carnevale said. "It was an independent investigation initiated by this department, assisted by the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office. The only one on campus notified was Jerold Witsil, chief of campus security, who was informed a half-hour before the 5 a.m. raid.

"Princeton University is not a sanctuary," commented Chief Carnevale. "Those on campus are subject to the same laws of this state and borough as any other citizen."

In a statement about the raid released by Princeton University, President William G. Bowen echoed Chief Carnevale. "Clearly, local law enforcement officials have both the right and the obligation to decide for themselves when they need to come on to the campus in order to discharge their responsibilities for enforcing laws which apply to all citizens.

Moreover," President Bowen added, the University's own policies make clear that we in no way condone the use of drugs, and will take disciplinary action against any who violate our policies."

Brown Resignation Sought. In an aftermath to the raid, "The Daily Princetonian" reported this week that 150 students have signed a petition calling for the resignation of Dean J. Anderson Brown, dean of student affairs. They are reportedly angered at what they believe to be his complicity in the investigation.

The Princeton chapter of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws also was quoted by the college paper as saying it plans to circulate a flyer asking that the Office of Student Affairs make public its role in the investigation.

An army of 50 law officers, including 25 of the Borough's 31-man force, Township police, members of the Prosecutor's Office and eight University Proctors were divided up into 12 arrest teams.

Members of the police were not told about the raid until 3 a.m. The search warrants, executed at 5 a.m., took the campus by surprise. The entire investigation was headed by Borough Sgt. Thomas Michaud.

Rounded up in the raid, said Chief Carnevale, were cocaine, LSD, Marijuana and other controlled dangerous substances that have not yet been identified by a police lab. That identification may take as long as two months.

Chief Carnevale added that there was "nothing extraordinarily large" about the quantity of drugs seized. He declined to estimate their value.

"A number of the charges concern distribution of drugs on campus," he said. He also commented that undercover agents had no difficulty in posing as young persons and infiltrating the campus. There were no purchases by high school students, he said.

"We are continuously monitoring the university campus," Chief Carnevale said. He added that the investigation of last week's raid is continuing.

Meanwhile, disciplinary procedures have already been initiated by the University at a preliminary meeting Monday of the faculty-student discipline committee. The committee has decided not to postpone its own hearings until after the disposition of the court cases.

The same committee assessed penalties ranging from one-and-a-half years probation to required withdrawal for two years against students who were charged in last December's raid.

had been on the board, but had been removed inadvertently by a Borough employee.

Mr. Sheehan later wrote to the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs questioning whether it was appropriate for the Borough to finance the project through a bond ordinance. Bonded projects are outside the state-imposed cap on municipal budgets.

"We are confident that it is an appropriate action," Mayor Robert Cawley told reporters Monday.

In other action at next Tuesday's meeting, Council will hold public hearing on the "secondary residence" law which will allow homeowners in certain zones to convert part of their homes into a small apartment.

FIX SEWERS?

Authorization Given. The state has announced that the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority -- of which Princeton is a member -- is authorized to spend $110,000 on engineering plans and specifications for rehabilitating specific parts of Princeton's ancient sewer system.

Borough engineer George Olexa, with years of experience in such matters, predicts it will be at least a year before any work can be done. Plans, to be drawn up by the Authority's engineers, Metcalf and Eddy, must be approved by the state's Department of Environmental Protection and then the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

One quarter of the $110,000 cost must be paid by Princeton. It will be divided three ways, according to sewer usage, by Borough, Township and Princeton University, constituents of the Sewer Operating Committee, acting as agents for the Authority.

Meanwhile, work has resumed on grouting parts of the sewer system not covered by the grant. The chemical that caused illness last spring in at least one worker, was immediately abandoned. The new chemical has arrived and is in use, Mr. Olexa reports. Work could not be done during October and November because the ground was too dry, but now that it is saturated, he says, work can start up again on patching the pipes.

STUDENT IS KILLED

When Car Leaves Roadway. A 17-year old Lawrenceville School student was killed early Sunday morning when the car in which he was riding swerved to avoid a dog and turned over.

The victim, Richard Papp, a senior at the school, was pronounced dead at Helene Fuld Medical Center in Trenton. He is the son of Aramco Oil official George Papp and his wife who are living in Saudi Arabia.

The 12:25 accident took place on Lewisville Road near the Princeton Pike. Lawrence

Mr. Bratman was in satisfactory condition in the same hospital after treatment for multiple injuries. Two other students in the car escaped with minor injuries.

Car Flips Over. When a car operated by James A. Sitko, 23, of Hamilton Square went over a frozen puddle on Route 206 between Valley Road and Mountain Avenue early Friday morning, it skidded to the left.

As Mr. Sitko tried to straighten the car, it swerved to the right and then flipped over on its side, then the roof and back to the side. He complained of pain to his leg after the mishap.

Police noted that the roadway there has been resurfaced four inches below the normal surface and when water from the shoulder runs onto the highway in cold weather, it freezes in the low sections.

Ronald K. Porter, 43, of Barnegat received lacerations of the face when his car swerved off Route 206 last week between Province Line and Quaker Road and struck a service pole. He was issued a summons by Ptl. Robert Nielsen for careless driving.

Gorham Sterling Snowflake

9th Annual Collector's Edition

Buying a Gorham Snowflake is a Christmas tradition many people started in 1970. The first ornament, and every snowflake since then has increased in value because Gorham has destroyed the dies at the end of each year. So, the lovely Sterling Snowflake is not only a sparkling addition to the tree, but also a valuable collectible that increases in value. 3 1/4" across, it can also be worn as a spectacular pendant. 1978 is stamped on the back with room for a message. $22.50 off Littlebrook Road onto Roper Road at 3 in the morning last week began to yaw and fishtail when the driver swerved to avoid an animal on the road.

It careened back and forth across Roper before running off the road into some woods where it struck a tree. The driver, William L. Warren of 92 Snowden Lane, sustained lacerations of the head and was treated at Princeton Medical Center.

PARKED CARS TARGET Of Vandals. Two parked cars were the target of vandals last week in the Borough. A Princeton resident told police when he returned to his car after attending a function at Princeton High School he discovered the hood had been dented and the windshield cracked. It appeared as if someone had walked over the car and kicked at the doors, police said.

A wooden fence post was uprooted and driven through the windshield of a car while it was parked Sunday in a Snowden Lane driveway.

Christmas Fund at $595

TOWN TOPICS' annual Christmas Appeal, made last week for the 31st year, has resulted in gifts totalling $595. Every cent contributed goes to the assistance of Princetonians with problems too big for them to solve alone -- all administrative costs are met by TOWN TOPICS. Those for whom the Appeal is made have been certified by the Family Service Agency, which approves the expenditure of all funds. Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund, mailed to P.O. Box 664, Princeton, or brought to 4 Mercer Street.

APPLICATION HEARD

On Lombardo Property. Martin P. Lombardo was absent from his Planning Board seat Tuesday night, but his application to convert property at 53 North Tulane into mixed use, was finally heard by the Planning Board. Board member Jerome Rose, who had challenged Mr. Lombardo three months ago, declaring that no one should sit on the Planning Board who might be coming before it with investment property, withdrew from consideration of the Lombardo case and moved into the audience.

The Planning Board had dealt as constructively as it possibly could in the Lombardo matter, Mr. Rose told his colleagues. He said he had hoped either Mr. Lombardo or Borough Council -- which appointed him -- would act meaning that Mr. Lombardo would either resign or asked to by Council but "neither has risen to the occasion."

"I have no present choice but to disassociate myself from the board," he said, when it acts on cases like Mr. Lombardo's which "taint" the board.

"Mr. Lombardo's application was filed before the code was adopted," chairman Margen Penick reminded the board, and proposed that the application be heard. No one joined Dr. Rose in his abstention.

The Robertson subdivision was approved, with drainage conditions, by a 7-2 vote.

DEADLINE EXTENDED

For Bird Seed Sale. Rancocas Nature Center Director Karl Anderson has announced that the Center's "Bird Seed Savings Day" sale, scheduled for Saturday, is continuing successfully. As a result of the demand, the deadline for advance mail and phone orders has been moved up to Thursday.

For more information, or to place orders for the dozen types and quantities of bird-feeding staples being offered, call the Nature Center at (609) 261-2495.

TO BUY LAND

From Kleinberg. The Township reached an agreement last Wednesday with Dr. William Kleinberg for purchase of his tract across Bunn Drive from Princeton Community Village, and condemnation won't be necessary.

Under the agreement, Dr. Kleinberg will sell the land to the Township for $224,000 and the Township will waive Dr. Kleinberg's $15,362 assessment for Bunn Drive. The land is assessed at $239,000.

At this Wednesday's meeting, Committee will discuss the projected traffic light for the Edgerstone-Route 206 intersection. The state will pay 85 percent and will apply for Federal money for the rest. However, if the Township pays the 15 percent share -- about $2,800 -- the light can probably be installed six months earlier than if Federal applications are made.

Committee will introduce the ordinance appropriating $50,000 to pay the school board for remodeling the Valley Road Building. The revision of the housing code, to bring it in line with the Borough's, will also be introduced.

The Planning Board will ask Committee to amend the land-use ordinance so that developers may be required to make off-tract improvements. The request refers chiefly to drainage problems where waters do not recognize property lines. In the 1960s, the Township tried to impose off-site improvements on a developer and lost in court because there was no ordinance to back up the requirement.

In work session, Committee will consider recom-

The thought that a scarcity of kittens might be upon us... But Robert Landau says he doesn't have enough. More people want kittens for gifts than there are kittens available, so if you have a couple, let him know. (924-3494).

A frolicsome trio of eight-week-old kittens has been drawing smiling crowds to Landau's store window (114 Nassau) all week. The grown-ups seem to enjoy the tumbling, prancing, pouncing even more than the kids. If you'd like to give a kitten for Christmas, just let Mr. Landau know, but you may have to get in line.

TEN ARE FINED

In Traffic Court. Thomas J. Graddis, 17½ Sergeant Street, who was fined $60 and had his license suspended for six months, is one of ten Princeton area residents fined Monday in Borough traffic court.

Fined for speeding were Mohammed Mottahedan of Rolling Hill Road, Skillman, $29, and Kevin Murphy, 12 Madison Street, $27; for a stop-sign violation, Philip Servis, Opossum Road, Skillman, $20, and Robert D. McGilure, 521 Lake Drive, $25; for careless driving, Brian Clancy, 90 Olden Lane, $25, and Clare Kuser, Cherry Valley Road, $30; for red light, Robert D. Pisarski, 218A Halsey Street, and Edward Stabler, 944 Stuart Road, both $20. Dorothy Helmick, 8 William Street, paid $20 for improperly exiting from a private drive.

Art Museum Plans 'Holiday Open House' Sunday

There is something for everyone at the Art Museum on the Princeton University campus, and everyone is invited this Sunday to a "Holiday Open House" to be held at the Museum from 1 to 5. (The museum makes a triangle with Nassau Hall and the Chapel. It is a contemporary building with Picasso's large sculptured head of a woman in front of the main main entrance.)

At 2 and 4, recorder and harpsichord music from the 17th and 18th centuries will be played by John Burkhalter and Linda Cox. At 3, James Rubin, of the University's art and archaeology department will talk about the graphic works of Odilon Redon, which are on display in the lower gallery. Refreshments will be served all afternoon.

"Something for everyone" starts with the poinsettia-banked statue of Carl Milles' slender "Nereid" at the front door. There, at the vestibule level, is Frederic Remington's virile bronze cowboy on a skittish horse -- "Rattlesnake" is the name of the sculpture and the reason for the horse's skittishness.

Flanking the stairs are splendid African masks and a teasingly small sample of the pre-Columbian art you'll find in full display at the lower level -- curious animal and god-like human forms shaped into jugs, vases, bowls.

Nostalgia Dept. After you go up stairs, straight ahead and in an alcove to the right are the two elegant little rooms, parlor and dining, called the "Boudinot Collection." Completely furnished, they offer a charming glimpse into the Princeton of the 18th and 19th centuries.

And directly opposite is the Robert Rauschenberg's "Untitled" paper, fabric and paint.

The pleasing thing about this museum, aside from its elegance of light and space, is the human scale. No overpowering vaults. Instead, after you've looked at the charming polychrome bust of Madonna and Child, you may catch a glimpse, across the stairwell, of something considerably later in time. When you investigate, you find Cezanne, Monet's waterlilies and his Japanese bridge, Toulouse-Lautrec and a stained glass window by Bourne-Jones.

The stone statue of St. John the Baptist, surrounded by the museum's live greenery as though he were in a garden, invites you into a room like a small 14th-century courtyard. Another kind of serenity prevails in the downstairs Oriental art collection, off the main stream of museum offerings.

On Sunday, the sales desk will be open, and guests may Engagement calendars published by other museums -- the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art -- will also be for sale.

For Decemberfest Auction. Preparations are well under way for the 1978 Decemberfest and Auction sponsored by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association. The event will be held Sunday, December 10, from 5:30 - 9:30 at the Institute for Advanced Study.

A silent auction will be conducted from 5:30 to 8 and a live auction from 7 to 9. On the block will be any number of diverse attractions. Participants may bid on a deep sea fishing trip, tickets to the Met, wines, a shore dinner or a variety of services.

Vacationers may have a chance at the use of houses in farflung places: the Aegean island of Ios, Cape Cod, cabins in the Adirondacks and Colorado, a condominium at Vero Beach. Proceeds from the festivities will benefit the Association's educational program, which will be expanded in 1979. An intensified membership drive has also been undertaken.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 and will be cooked in the woks of Peter Vielbig. Starting with shrimp roll, the Oriental style meal will feature breast of chicken stir-fried in sesame oil and stir-fried vegetables. Ice cream and peaches spiced with ginger will complete the meal.

Reservations are now being taken at Watersheds Office - 737-3735. Cost of the evening is $10 per person. Since occupancy of the dining room is limited to 300, reservations are on a first come-first-served basis.

Institute's Creed: 'The Pursuit of Truth For Its Own Ends More Precious Than Ever'

"Out-reach" into the community is regarded by the financially-pressed Institute for Advanced Study as one of the steps toward "income."

It is, of course, much more than that. It's a way of opening the door to a broader understanding to the Institute's philosophy.

"The pursuit of truth for its own ends is more precious than ever," says Institute Director Harry Woolf with quiet intensity. "We need to have people understand that there is not always a visible product of research. Nourishment of ideas themselves, is essential to a free people."

"It's hard to speak up for a sense of honest elitism," he adds. "I'm talking about a Jeffersonian elite: no matter who you are, you're at the Institute for what's in your head, your talent. It doesn't matter what race or sex you are, or where you come from. Long before it was chic to say so, back in 1930-32, the Institute's founding letter says that."

"We want to show the world we're like other people, with similar needs, perhaps similar purposes."

And Dr. Woolf smiles, "We're not odd-balls. Our hair is no longer than anyone else's. We jog and go to the movies and listen to music and send our kids to Princeton schools."

Two major tensions are essential at the Institute, Dr. Woolf believes.

First is the tension between the individual scholar and that scholar's work. Inner tensions can pull tight when a scholar is working at the Institute. What may have seemed at first like a lovely year or two of liberty—or even license!—soon turns into a sense of obligation.

The second tension, as Dr. Woolf sees it, is between each faculty—mathematics, natural sciences, historical studies, social science—and the profession itself.

"The faculty person must be aware of what's going on in the profession," Dr. Woolf explains. "If he invites lunkheads to the Institute, in a year or two he's dead!"

Dr. Woolf likes to illustrate the importance of tensions at the Institute with a metaphor:

"When the string isn't taut, it doesn't sing."

Einstein Centennial

other countries are fun to meet, of course. And there are the Institute Woods, open to the public and tramped year 'round by bird-watchers and people who just like a walk in the woods.

The - "good neighbor" concept was strained somewhat a few years ago when Princeton Township took the Institute to court over the institution's claim that the woods should be tax-free because they were open space owned by a non-profit corporation and used by the public.

The Institute won. It does pay taxes on its non-academic holdings like farm-land and houses and it puts money into maintaining the woods and their paths.

"The public is very decent about caring for those woods," and Dr. Woolf is grateful. "We love that relationship and hope it continues without a strain."

Facilities Limited. Although the Institute hopes to have more contact with the Princeton community, the Einstein celebrations themselves will probably have to be limited to the community of scholars, simply because there isn't enough room - "we don't have enough chairs!" the director says.

"The centenary will open in a way Einstein would never have wanted: a celebration of himself," Dr. Woolf begins.

First, there will be a four-day scientific symposium - March 4 to 9. (Albert Einstein's birthday is actually March 14, but earlier symposium dates have been set so that scholars can travel to Einstein celebrations elsewhere in the world.)

The program, now being planned, will probably include lectures on black holes, the origin of relativity, the impact of Einstein on mathematics and so on. Along with the symposium will be two concerts by the Juilliard Quartet and the Emerson Quartet of New York.

A Nostalgic Touch. "Einstein once played with the Juilliard, you know," Dr. Woolf says, "and we're hoping they'll play the music they played with him."

"I imagine," he adds after a moment's thought, "they may have played with a better violinist - but never with a better physicist!"

During the four-day period, the Strauss Foundation will present to its previously-chosen Einstein medallist the gold medal and $15,000 that go with the award.

In the spirit of outreach, the Institute invited the Smithsonian Institution to join in mounting a special Einstein exhibit, and the Smithsonian responded by agreeing, and announcing that it will devote its own public lectures to Einstein.

The Federal government will strike a commemorative Einstein stamp on the March 14 birth date.

In Every State. A grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities will pay for two projects. One is a 16-panel, free-standing screen with pictures, letters and other Einstein memorabilia. There will be 50 of these sets and one will be given free to each state.

Vandals Damage 25 Mailboxes in Township;
Police Warn Offense is Federal in Nature

Township police are searching for the culprits who have maliciously damaged approximately 25 mailboxes in the past month.

Two were smashed on Stuart Road and another on the Great Road between 10 Saturday evening and Sunday morning. The three had been lifted off their stands and destroyed. Chief Frederick Porter reported there have been other cases in various sections of the Township when mailboxes have been run over by cars.

"We're going to get whoever is responsible," promised Chief Porter. "Anyone apprehended by this department for malicious damage to mailboxes or any other property will be severely dealt with as proscribed by law." The Chief warned anyone caught damaging mailboxes will also be charged under federal statutes.

Although he said police patrols have been stepped up, Chief Porter issued an appeal for help in the apprehension of those responsible. He urged citizens to call police immediately if they hear any suspicious noise or see a suspicious car in their area.

"It will reverberate for years," predicts Dr. Woolf, regarding the nationwide exhibit. "It will show the personality, the human side of Einstein."

The other project is a lecture bureau which will, for a year or two, provide speakers from the Institute.

Princeton University's Art Museum will arrange an exhibit related to the Einstein theme, and Firestone Library may have a "1905" exhibit showing various events of the year in which Einstein published the three major papers that won him the Nobel prize.

An Einstein Centennial Fund will endow future scholarships and perhaps an Einstein professorship. Curiously, there are such professorships elsewhere but none at the Institute where Dr. Einstein worked for 23 years.

For the Princeton community, there will be a Friends of the Institute, to be organized by Mary Wisnovsky, who was appointed this fall to the new position of assistant to the director, community relations.

"Friends" will receive, for an annual membership, a concert series and lectures by people who are part of the "exciting traffic that passes through the Institute." Abba Eban, for example, has just given two lectures on the development of modern diplomacy.

Under the late Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, Dr. Woolf says, a "half-tradition" was begun of inviting to the Institute people like the psychologist Jean Piaget or the poet T.S. Eliot, and this will be continued as part of the Institute's outreach to its "Friends" in the Princeton community.

"This will be a new intellectual stimulus for us," Dr. Woolf comments, "and through membership in the Friends, the Princeton community will help shape our future."

The director likes to think of all the visiting scholars from around the world as "yeast." "They go back from here and make loaves elsewhere," he says. "If you support us, you support research throughout the world."

Improvement Can Be Costly

You can make a million mistakes trying to sell your own home. And one of them is making the wrong improvements. Many times, an expensive addition or repair can be the kind of thing that'll cost you far more than you get back.

True, the house should present a favorable appearance—mowed lawn, trimmed shrubs, and no obvious indications of neglect, but it's rare when a large financial undertaking will bring more than its cost in the final selling price.

There is always the financial risk of miscalculation too. Home repair costs frequently end up a lot higher than originally anticipated. You may end up with a faster sale and less inconvenience if you lower the selling price an equivalent amount.

Instead of guessing as to how much, if any, repair work to undertake, see a Realtor. He can tell you what to do to make your home more salable. And what not to do so you won't lose money.

If you are leaving the area and need information about homes for sale in another town or state—call STONY BROOK REALTY for a free copy of Homes For Living picture magazine for the area you will be moving to. Stop in and see the selection of Homes for Living from 1,800 offices in over 9,000 communities from coast to coast. STONY BROOK REALTY, 35 W. Broad St., Hopewell. Phone: 466-0900 or 737-9150.

FOUR ATTEND SIGNING
Of Autism Resolution. Four students from Eden Institute were present at a State House ceremony in Trenton when Governor Brendan T. Byrne became the first governor of New Jersey to publicly honor the state's autistic population.

In the presence of the four autistic students, ranging from 3 to 18 years of age, the governor signed a joint resolution which had unanimously passed both the Senate and Assembly on November 22. The joint resolution designates the week of December 3 through the 9 as National Autistic Week in the State of New Jersey.

In recognition of the work being accomplished by concerned parents and professionals with autistic children, the resolution made special mention of the three private schools now serving the autistic population in New Jersey: Eden Institute, Princeton; Search Day Program, Township of Ocean; and Princeton Child Development Institute, Princeton.

Dr. David L. Holmes, director of Eden Institute noted that the "passage of the joint resolution by the legislature and the governor's designating the first week in December as National Autistic Week in the state is a historical landmark for all autistic people in New Jersey." Dr. Holmes said that "most people are unaware of autism and its devastating effect on the lives of these children and their families and thanks to Governor Byrne the public will become more aware of the needs of autistic children."

REGULATIONS BACKED

At Hearing on Canal Use. A three-hour hearing in Township Hall Monday night found Mercer County towns on the Delaware & Raritan Canal favoring regulations proposed by the D. & R. Canal Commission -- with a few exceptions.

Regulations would require Commission review of every project in an "A" zone half a mile wide on each side of the canal, for visual and noise "pollution," drainage and water-quality impact. In a wider "B" zone, only major projects would be reviewed (no noise or visual impact here).

Princeton University's Jon Hlafter protested that Jadwin Gym could fall under the "visual" pollution standard, and that the rules could jeopardize the University's ability to develop its academic buildings. He said the University may ask that some of its property be exempt.

Most objectors protested Commission review subsequent to approval by local boards, and recommended concurrent review instead.

Robert Webb, chairman of West Windsor's Planning Board, also warned that the rules could inhibit development. "A", for example, is almost the entire space between the canal and Route One.

Township Mayor Josie Hall, remarking that Township drainage requirements are stiffer than the proposals, recommended a committee to review local ordinances. The Township is glad, she said, that other communities will have to regulate the quality and quantity of water that goes into the canal.

William Cherry, Township Committee member, expressed alarm over canal water-quality, especially where heavy metals -- lead, zinc, chrome -- are concerned warning that chlorine's reaction to certain chemicals in water can produce carcinogens.

Thomas Cawley, of Elizabethtown Water Company, explained later that the chlorine problem doesn't exist in area waters, and is a worry chiefly in north Jersey. Elizabethtown's water meets all state and Federal requirements, he told the Commission. The company tests for heavy metals, he said, and regards organics -- fertilizers and so on, -- as more of a problem. The metals sink to the bottom, he explained.

Several speakers expressed concern about heavy-metal run-off from Mercer Mall and Quaker Bridge Mall parking lots.

The Commission has four more public hearings in canal counties.

REDON WORK SHOWN

At University Museum. "I suffered the torments of imagination and the surprises which it presented to me under the pencil..." said Odilon Redon, referring to the strange, often mystical, body of work which he created. He then continued, saying that he hoped his works would communicate "... all the evocative power, all the charm of the vague that lies at the extreme limit of thought."

It is this extreme limit of thought that is presented in the exhibition, "One Man's Vision: The Graphic Works of Odilon Redon," at the Princeton University Art Museum. The collection, which is organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service from the collection of Edward Binney III, offers a view of the artist's world of averted glances and enlarged eyes that appear to be contemplating inner secrets.

The exhibition includes the artist's early etchings as well as the lithographs which were the main body of his graphic oeuvre. Most of the lithographs were developed as series to accompany various texts. The dark side of the mind is graphically embodied in prints that were created for Flaubert's "Tentation de Saint-Antoine," Baudelaire's "Les Fleurs de Mal" and an album in honor of Edgar Allen Poe. These are accompanied by a great many individual prints and several other series. They embody fantasies of death and desperation populated by animal forms, organic creatures, gods and goddesses, centaurs and the sphinx. Although many of the prints were designed to accompany texts, they are not illustrative material. They are, mostly, supplemental works which express the artist's own feelings as they relate to the subject.

Throughout the collection there is an atmosphere of mystery and foreboding. The artist explores the expressive possibilities of black by creating deep shadows from which highlighted other-worldly forms emerge. The balance of lights and darks creates as much of the mystique as the imagery.

Portraits Provide Contrast. A small collection of portraits by Redon offers contrast to the other works and demonstrates a different facet of the artist's talents. Sensitive, delicately wrought representations of Edouard Vuillard, Maurice Denis and other associates of the artist offer a lightness and delicacy of line that makes them quite different from the fantasies.

Although Redon is often grouped with the Symbolists, Nabis and other artistic movements of the late 19th century, both the style and content of his work set him apart from his contemporaries. He was a part of the printmaking revolution that took place at that time, but his statement is so clearly unique and his visions so personal that his work must be regarded as a truly independent phenomenon.

FROM THE DREAM WORLD: "Limbo," shown here, is from Odilon Redon's "Dans le Reve," now on view at the Princeton University Art Museum.

Attic and Corinthian Pottery. The pottery of Greece tells much about the general artistic product of that highly developed society. Because few paintings survived it is through the decorations on the pottery that we have learned much of the story of the artistic developments that took place. The growing sophistication in anatomical representation, transitions in decorative motifs and technical and stylistic changes have all been revealed through a study of Greek pottery.

A collection of Attic and Corinthian pottery from the 7th and 6th centuries BC on view at the Art Museum offers examples of works from the two most important pottery centers on the Greek mainland. Corinth was, in the 7th and early 6th century, the commercially dominant Greek state and was the leading producer of pottery. In the sixth century Corinth declined in influence and Athens became firmly established as the major ceramic center of the Mediterranean.

Although pottery is the main feature of the display, there are small bronzes and terra cotta works, some opaque glass and a display of architectural elements from Sardis. More primitive Cypriote and Egyptian works, more simply conceived and constructed than their companion pieces, contrast with the sophisticated silhouettes and motifs that are to be found in the featured works. Black figure painting, rosettes, mythic subjects and elaborately developed borders decorate kraters, cups bowls and other wares.

At McCarter Theatre. The Princeton Art Association's 11th Annual Juried Graphics Exhibition presents a different face from its predecessors. There are, in the present collection, a great many drawings in various media. The great majority of the selected drawings evidence an unusual amount of skill. Competent lithographs, collagraphs, etchings and silk screen complement the drawings, creating an overall effect of high-quality, pleasingly constructed artwork.

If there is a fault to be found in this collection, it is in the feeling of aesthetic conservatism that pervades the exhibit. Although there are some works included that do

Art in Princeton

Continued from preceding page go beyond the traditional, the great majority of the included pieces stay well within traditional boundaries. The overall effect, however, is pleasing, with individual works able to bear close scrutiny and be considered as sensitive works of art.

At Gallery 100. Paintings by Craig Winston Hendrix and sculpture by Kit Raymond share the exhibition space at Gallery 100. Both artists are representational in their approach to their subject but the effect differs. Raymond's sculpture, which bears the traces of Western art of the past century, offers small but somewhat heavy renditions of bears, Indians and the like.

Henrix' farm paintings, which include barns and other architectural subjects, offer a sense of light and air in their pleasing presentations. The approach is painterly despite the intense fidelity to detail and the subtle palette supports both subject and technique in a sensitive manner.

EASTERN MOOD SHOWN
At Shibui. Shibui, specialists in Japanese

Antiques, are celebrating their first Christmas season with a selection of art works of particular interest to devotees of the reserved mood of the East.

Recently arrived are two watercolors by artist Lau Chen, formerly of Princeton, now of Los Angeles. Mrs. Chen, whose works have been widely collected here, has had outstanding recent success with one-man shows in California and Hawaii. Her almost abstract rendering of nature is an exponent of the poetic concept embodied in the term "shibui."

Also being shown are a series of etchings by Princeton artist Nancy Kern, among them a stalking Burmese cat, a study of Pekinese, and a pair of Japanese spaniels. Sumie paintings, two Chinese works on silk, scrolls, and unusual embroideries are also on view. Shibui, 24 Witherspoon Street at Chambers Walk, is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 to 6 and Thursday from 1 to 8:30.

WATERCOLORS SHOWN
At Medical Center Exhibit. The Medical Center at Princeton will feature the watercolors of Betty Whelan this month and next.

A member of the Garden State Watercolor Society and Princeton Art Association, Mrs. Whelan has exhibited in numerous juried shows throughout the state.

A reception will be held from 1-3 p.m. Sunday, in the main lobby of the hospital. The public is invited.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

NOTES TO GROW BY
 Don't discard those wood ashes from the fireplace! Each pound of wood ashes contains approximately 32% calcium, 5% potash and 3% phosphoric acid, along with certain trace elements necessary for plant growth. Store the ashes in a dry place and mix into the garden soil in the spring.
 A mulch may be applied to the perennial garden after the soil has frozen to a depth of about 3". A winter mulch is applied to prevent continuous freezing and thawing of the soil throughout the season—it is not applied to prevent the soil from freezing. In addition to perennials, board-leaved evergreens will also benefit from a winter mulch.
 Don't allow snow to collect on the tops of evergreen hedges which have been pruned to be flat. If snow remains for too long, the shrubs can be severely damaged.
 Deciduous trees and shrubs may be pruned any time, now that they are dormant.

Gold Chains Taken. Two gold chains valued at $236, a necklace and earrings were stolen last week from a Nassau Street store.

Police said a woman engaged a sales clerk in conversation away from a display case while an accomplice broke the case and grabbed the jewelry. She was described as 5-7 with reddish hair, wearing rust-colored boots and a rust-colored jacket. He was described as 5-10 with a beard wearing an off-white jacket.

Campus Thefts. There were four larcenies reported on the University campus.

A brown leather wallet containing $100 was taken from a pocketbook placed under the victim's desk in Nassau Hall; $40 was taken from an unlocked room in Brown Hall; $60 from a wallet left on top of dresser in an unlocked room in 1901 Hall, and a $300 35mm camera from an unlocked room in Holder Hall.

A $130 bicycle was stolen Sunday afternoon from in front of a home on Cameron Court -- it was unlocked -- and a 10-speed bicycle was reported stolen Saturday while it was left unlocked on Nassau Street.

CANDLELIGHT TOURS SET
 Of Washington's Headquarters. The interpreter-caretakers of Rockingham, Washington's headquarters in Rocky Hill, and Wallace House, the headquarters in Somerville, will hold candlelight tours of the sitting rooms and dining rooms in both houses during each weekend in December.

The houses will be decorated in the colonial manner and the hostesses in colonial dress. Visiting hours at each house will be Saturday from 10 to 12 and 1 to 6. The entrance fee is 50 cents for adults, with children under 12 admitted free.

PRAYER VIGIL SET
 For Convicted Man. Clergy and laity will hold an interfaith prayer vigil on Tuesday in front of Morvin, Governor Brendan Byrne's residence on Stockton Street. The vigil seeks to persuade him to grant executive clemency to George Merritt before Christmas and Hanukkah.

Mr. Merritt has served nine years of a life sentence in Rahway State Prison. He was convicted at trials in 1968, 1974 and 1977 of helping a crowd to beat to death Patrolman John V. Gleason in Plainfield. The first two convictions were reversed by the Appellate Court in 1971 and 1976, and these reversals were sustained by the Supreme Court of New Jersey.

An appeal of his third conviction is to be heard on February 6. In it Mr. Merritt alleges that the prosecutor at his third trial concealed evidence that undermined the credibility of the chief witness against him, in spite of a court order to make that evidence available to the defense. In this third appeal Mr. Merritt also charges that the prosecutor presented to the jury data which the prosecutor knew to be untrue.

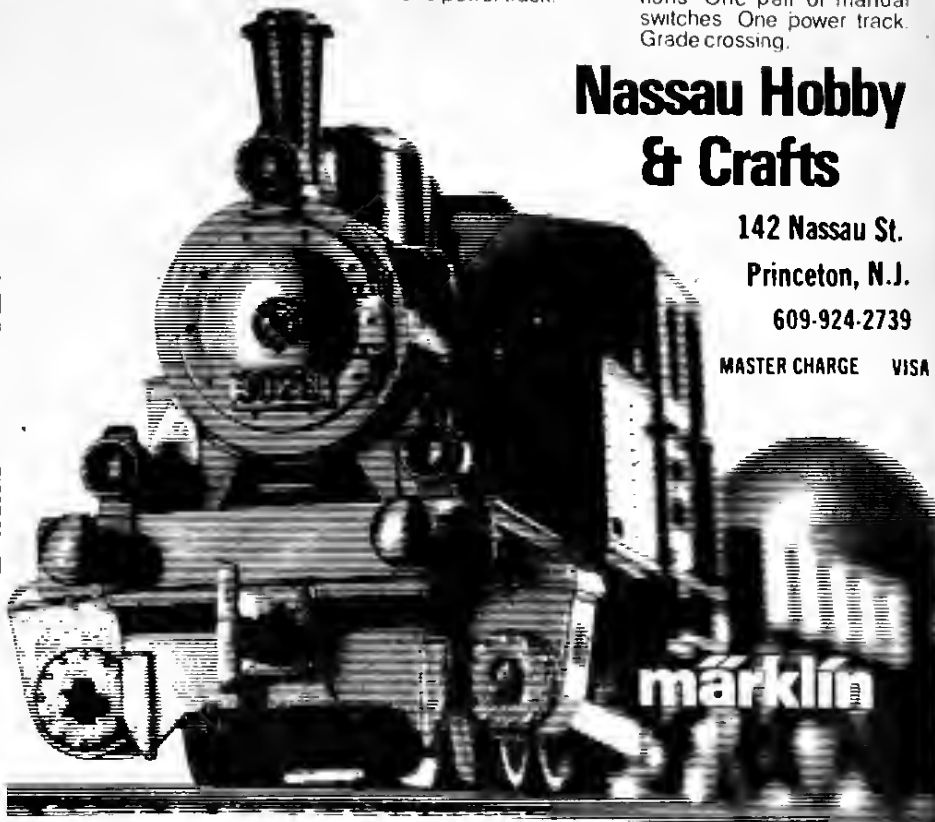

Mr. Merritt maintains that he is innocent, has never had a fair trial, and is not likely to get one even if his third conviction is overturned.

Members of the vigil, meeting under the auspices of the New Jersey Council of Churches' Committee for Clemency, will assemble at 2 p.m. at the chapel of Princeton Theological Seminary. They will be addressed by the Rev. Arthur Jones, president of the New Jersey Council of Churches, and other clergy and laity.

ASSOCIATE NAMED

At Trinity Church, Trinity Church has named a new associate to its staff. It was announced last Sunday at the annual meeting. The Rev. Richard A. Brower, rector of St. Mary's by-the-Sea in Point Pleasant, is expected to assume his new post sometime in January.

Mr. Brower is a 38-year old native of Santa Ana, Calif., who received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Southern California in 1963, spent two years in the army and then entered seminary. He is a graduate of Fuller Theological Seminary and Princeton Theological Seminary where he received the master of theology and was a seminarian associate at Trinity Church.

He also had a year of Anglican studies at Philadelphia Divinity School before being ordained an Episcopal priest in 1970. He spent three years as an assistant at St. Luke's in Metuchen before assuming the rectorship of St. Mary's. He is a graduate of Rutgers School of Alcohol Studies and Alcoholism and spent two years studying pastoral counseling at Trinity Counseling Service.

Mr. Brower will have special responsibilities in the organization and development of a pastoral services program which can meet a variety of human needs both inside and outside the parish. He will also be responsible for parish communications, adult education, and the coordination and implementation of plans for Sunday worship and worship on special occasions.

Election of wardens and vestry also took place at the annual meeting. Leighton Laughlin, junior warden for the past two years, was elected senior warden to succeed Henry Bessire, and Joan Fleming was elected junior warden, the first woman so named in the history of the parish. They will serve two years each. Elected to the vestry were Verna Matthews, Susan Kugler, James Love, Alice Bishop and David Hartz.

TO HOST RECEPTION

For Council President. The First Baptist Church on John Street at Paul Robeson Place will host a reception in honor of the Rev. M. ## CHRISTMAS IN HARBOURTON

GREENWOOD

A stunning fieldstone colonial with slate roof, a one-half mile wooded lane, 85 rolling acres, absolute privacy. Dating from 1710 with additions in the 1800's and 1900's--all fieldstone. Completely renovated in 1951 by skilled artisans, each of the eleven rooms features raised panelled deep set windows and wainscoting of select hardwoods. The formal living room and study are finished in random width cherry and pine; each has a stone fireplace, the study a wet bar, and delicately burnished woodwork and mantles of a day gone by. The spacious dining room has two corner cupboards and deep set windows overlooking a meadow. The country kitchen is warm and inviting with its own brick fireplace, beamed ceiling, and has every conceivable modern convenience--a gourmet's delight--a family's haven. The master bedroom and three additional bedrooms, a sitting room with stone fireplace and three baths complete the second floor. Each entryway is connected by flagstone walkways to four flagstone patios constructed of hand hewn stone. The acreage is divided into lawns with boxwood plantings for future generations to enjoy, pastures already fenced, and fertile farmland. The original springhouse stands near the house providing water for ponds, horses, and the home itself. If you need a peaceful, special place, journey down this lane; you are sure to stay. Subject to subdivision. Please call us for your personal appointment. $555,000

Behrman Comedy at McCarter Has Strong Points But Proves to Be 'Less Than Wholly Satisfying'

A MAN IN THEIR FUTURE: Patricia Elliott and Carrie Nye in McCarter Theatre's current production of "No Time for Comedy." (Cliff Moore photo)

So much talent, intelligence, and energy is invested in the McCarter Theatre Company's current offering, "No Time for Comedy" by S. N. Behrman, that it could hardly fail to be somewhat amusing. Those who recall the 1939 Broadway production will find this version broader and less plausible.

The story centers around a playwright, Gaylord (Gay) Easterbrook, whose last three Broadway hits have been vehicles for his comedienne-wife, Linda, but who is just serious-minded and conscientious enough to wonder whether it is Man's Work to go on turning out theatrical fluffballs when fascism is winning in Spain and World War II threatens.

Linda understandably believes he should go on doing what he does so well; but Amanda, the willowy, socially-conscious, neglected wife of rich banker Philo Smith, is trying to convert him into a writer of "serious" plays with political and philosophical significance — and, incidentally, into her lover and new husband.

In the tug-of-war over Gay, mortality, in which "No Time" abounds. From characters who seem to have stepped out of the Carol Burnett show, such talk sinks rapidly.

Apparently fearing that today's audience will not sit still for high comedy, Director Gerald Gutierrez has Mr. Coffey playing at farce pace, his lanky body and young-Walter-Abel face constantly in motion: crouching, jumping, bouncing in and out of rooms and furniture, scowling, grimacing, mugging. At one point in Act I he drives home his infantilism by taking off his shoes and curling up on a sofa with his head in Mama Linda's lap!

Perhaps Gay's childishness is accentuated to permit Miss Nye to play Amanda so affectedly and transparently that only a small boy could fail to see through her.

A Charming Performance. Ah! But then we have a warm, charming, appealing performance of Linda by Patricia Elliott, which does much to redeem the evening. It is quite believable that her calm strength and maternalism would drive a weak, insecure man into the arms of another woman (though not of Amanda as here overplayed); hard to believe, though actress and playwright are reconciled in the end, that the mismatch will last.

News Of The THEATRES

Philo is on his wife's side: wants her to win Gay so he, Philo, can marry a divorced Linda. And Clementine, the Easterbrooks' free-swinging maid, is pulling for Linda. A wry, witty bachelor named Lovell squires both Linda and Amanda and makes droll, often funny comments on the situation.

Sad to Relate ... A good set-up for a writer with Behrman's gift for witty dialogue — provided Gay seems worth fighting over, which, alas, as played by Peter Coffield, he doesn't; and provided there isn't too much talk about Gay's writing problems, which there is.

Even someone who has never written a play must realize it takes some intelligence, knowledge of human nature, shrewdness and sense of humor to be the successful author Gay is supposed to be; but he displays none of those qualities, except when firing off a very occasional witty one-liner.

True, he is between plays — rough territory for a playwright — and he is a problem drinker. But surely, given his profession, he has an ear sensitive enough to recognize as bushwah the flattery and encouragement Amanda breathily heaps on him. Carrie Nye plays Amanda as if doing a nightclub imitation of Katharine Hepburn.

Both of these key performances shift what was intended as high comedy into low.

A Downward Trend. It is probably impossible for even a scrupulously legitimate production to float the serious discussions of playwrighting techniques and values, and of abstractions such as im-

McCarte Review

Richard Clark is amusing and attractive in his stilted way as Philo, though here again the play would be more effective if he were given the third dimension hinted at in the writing; if virtues implied in Act I were allowed to surface a bit more. Instead, presumably for laughs, he is unrelievedly stiff, stuffy and cold to the core.

Lovell the bachelor, since he is probably based on Mr. Behrman's good friend Oscar Levant, could hardly be overplayed, and Larry Pine drew big laughs and applause from the opening night audience with his acid remarks.

Sarallen, as Clementine, manages to bring credibility and individuality to a conventional wise-cracking servant of the period.

Numerous Pitfalls. It is a theater truism that nervousness on the part of an actor shatters the spell of a play by making the audience nervous. An actor may be good or bad, right or wrong for his role, but he had better be confident.

It is equally true, if less understood, that a director, by pushing his actors too hard, can reveal nervousness about his play, can signal lack of confidence in its ability to hold audience attention if played believably. This, too, can make an audience nervous and shatter a play's magic.

There are lots of laughs in "No Time," and the audience seemed to be liking it. But if Messrs. Kahn and Gutierrez thought it had to be played like "Three Men on a Horse" they would have been wiser to do "Three Men on a Horse." This way we get neither high nor low comedy; and the evening is less than wholly satisfying despite some fine performances, good moments, handsome sets (two classy New York apartments by John Lee Beatty, who also gets credit for snazzy '30s costumes, and the civilized talk of S. N. Behrman).

The McCarte Company is like the Princeton football team of recent years: it always puts up a good, often a brilliant, fight; but it so seldom wins one.

Incidentally, Mr. Behrman's play is not about Comedy but about insubstantial, artificial, footling pseudo comedy. Real Comedy sheds light on human nature and is obviously Man's Work in any season, more needed in troubled than in tranquil times. A conscientious man, Mr. Behrman apparently realized that strong Comedy was beyond him, for this was his last original play.

— William McCleery

SEMINAR, POST-PLAY
On Behrman Comedy. A seminar on "No Time for Comedy" will immediately follow Tuesday night's performance of the S.N. Behrman comedy at McCarte. It's free, to subscribers and ticket-holders.

This seminar is the third in six, planned by the theatre to give audiences an opportunity to meet actors, directors and critics, and to talk with them about the play. Michael Earley, literary manager of McCarte, is moderator for the series.

ONE-ACTS
At Intime. Two one-act plays by American authors will be presented by Theatre Intime as a workshop for Princeton University students who would like to direct.

Both plays will be given December 7-10 and 14-16 in Murray Theatre's Intime stage. All performances are at 8:30 p.m.

"The Typists," by Murray Schisgal, will be directed by Princeton senior Joshua Hammer, and "27 Wagons Full of Cotton" will be directed by sophomore Lisa Fisher.

Mr. Hammer has written for Triangle shows, as well as for the Daily Princetonian as contributing editor and columnist. He plans a career as playwright or journalist. Ms. Fisher is general manager of Theatre Intime, and has been producer and stage manager for several productions at Intime and elsewhere on campus.

"OLIVER!"

"...for Kids." It was the "Best Picture" of 1968, and McCarte has brought it back for a new decade of children—"Oliver!", Sir Carol Reed's movie based on the Broadway musical which was, in turn, based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

McCarte's screenings will be this Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. It's a family show, geared to the holiday season. Tickets will be on sale at the box office from 10 until 2 the day of the screenings.

Songs include gang-leader Fagin's "You've Got to Pick a Pocket or Two," Nancy's ballad, "As Long as He Needs Me" and "Consider Yourself," in which the Artful Dodger introduces Oliver to the slums of London.

"PHILANTHROPIST"

English Import Here. "The Philanthropist: A Bourgeois Comedy," came over from England in the early '70s. It will be revived for Princeton audiences as Princeton Inn Theatre's second production of the season, playing from this Thursday through Sunday, and again Wednesday through Saturday, December 16. Performances will be at 8:30 p.m.

Princeton University senior Richard Bliss is directing. In Christopher Hampton's play, a professor wants only to please everyone he meets, but manages to insult both friends and enemies. By the final curtain, he has lost the love of three women and been betrayed — unwittingly — by his best friend.

Princeton Inn Theatre is on Alexander Road, directly opposite the intersection of Alexander and University Place. Reservations for tickets may be made at 452-6094 between 10 and 6, Mondays through Saturdays, and until 8:30 on performance days. Tickets are $2.50; $1.50 for students.

DRATFIELD & ASCH

"Broome Street..." Lee Dratfield, singer-actress, and pianist Rita Asch, will present "From Broome Street to Broadway," a recollection of Jewish musical theatre, at Artist Showcase Theatre, 1150 Indiana Avenue, Trenton, this Friday and Sunday. Both performances will be at 8:30.

The presentation recreates early moments of Second Avenue theatre in New York, and continuing through vaudeville, Sophie Tucker and Fanny Brice, Tin Pan Alley and George Gershwin, Irving Berlin and Sammy Cahn to the contemporary Broadway scene with Leonard Bernstein, Marvin Hamlisch and others.

"These are the songs," Ms. Dratfield explains, "created and performed by the offspring of cantors, pushcart vendors, sewing-machine operators and tradesmen. The songs are a vital and lasting part of the Jewish heritage."

AUDITIONS SET

For Jacques Brel Work. The Pennington Players will hold auditions for their production of "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" to be presented in February.

Auditions will be held on Sunday from 2 to 5 and on Monday from 7 to 10 in the Pennington Presbyterian Church, Delaware Avenue at Main Street, Pennington. The show consists of a staged presentation of 25 songs written by Brel. The cast will be four adults (two male, two female) with singing and acting ability. Auditioners should come prepared to sing a song from the show.

No appointment is required. Call 921-6226 for further information.

OPERA PLANNED

By Mercer County College. Victor Herbert's operetta,

"Babes in Toyland," will be presented by Mercer County Community College's Performing Arts Department on Friday at 8 and Saturday at 1 and 8 in Kelsey Theatre on the West Windsor campus.

The original operetta was introduced in 1903, followed by a film version starring Laurel and Hardy and another produced by Walt Disney. Now, the Mercer Dance Theatre Company has adapted the popular score under the artistic direction of Christina Klotz as the audience follows the escapades of the "Babes" in "Mother Goose Land" and their search for "Toyland."

Cleveland String Quartet and Flutist Perform In Concert Monday Night at McCarter Theatre

The Cleveland String Quartet was joined by flutist Paula Robison Monday night in a Princeton University Concert at McCarter Theater.

Prokofiev's and Beethoven's string quartets in F major, op. 92, and in B-flat major, op. 130, respectively, flanked Mozart's quartet in D major for flute and strings, K. 285, on the program. Each selection responds best to a different style of playing, and the artists were generally equipped to meet those various demands.

The Prokofiev calls for and received a cultivated coarseness, especially in the first movement and in parts of the finale. This brusque opus, based on folk-melodies, proceeds for long stretches at an energetic pitch, hurtling on with not much by way of relief or contrast. Somewhat uncomfortably cast into sonata form, the first movement contains a second theme which is as noisy as the first, not a bit relaxed. The development gets so raucous that the recapitulation no longer grates, as it seems to want to do. Even the Adagio

The Cleveland Quartet performed with the gusto this piece demanded. The thick textures were not overly dense, and one could hear things happen within them. The heavy ostinatos were authoritative and the variety of percussive noises and related sounds (pizzicato, spiccato, sul ponticello, col legno) were adroitly integrated.

A Grumbling Cello. In the second movement, the fragments of melody winding through the ensemble were expertly handed across to one another. There was a section in the finale where an almost pitchless, grumbling frenzy on the low cello, punctuated by rhythmic pizzicato slashes on the second violin, provided a fabulous noise to set off the soaring melody played in multiple octaves by the first violin and viola.

One marvels that Prokofiev could set up such a racket and still have two instruments left over for the tune. Only the cello cadenza and what remained in the piece sounded less than totally convincing.

The Mozart piece asks for a more joyful spirit as it bubbles on its way. Although the violin and very occasionally the viola make some solo contributions, this quartet is really a solo for the flute. Ms. Robison accordingly took charge and just played the daylight out of it.

So tangibly did she form both single tones and longer phrases, I could almost visualize the printed notes assuming various sizes and shapes, to indicate pictorially and precisely one or another type of execution. The outer movements glowed radiantly while the flute's long phrases in the second-movement aria swelled and diminished to the brink of extinction and revved to continue.

Finesse Required. Beethoven's quartet is the most complex of the three works heard, and probably the most familiar to string quartet devotees. While it may not be any more intricate in its part writing than Prokofiev's, it requires so much more finesse and subtlety in its performance. Where massive thickness would work for Prokofiev, the texture here has to be transparent even though active and busy.

It is terribly difficult to achieve all the clarity one would like, and the Cleveland Quartet did not quite make it in this concert. The outline was there, but one couldn't "see inside." There were also some tuning problems and unsure entrances.

The undulating "Alla danza tedesca" cannot fail to please, and even though it was played a little slowly, it conveyed a subdued lilt. The conspicuous dissection of the theme passed from part to part with superlative continuity.

The pacing of the finale was sure, the focal points being the chromatic and tonally ambiguous unison-octave transition back to the main theme, and the last driving statement of that theme. But the best played by far was the searingly intense cavatina, where the progress of the quartet is almost suspended and the introspective legato phrases float nobly by. This could scarcely have been played better, and the group will surely be able to bring the rest of the piece up to that level before long.

--Donald Greenfield

Mr. Sachs teaches at Queens College and the Juilliard School and is co-director of the Performers' Committee for Twentieth-Century Music, which presents a yearly series of composers' retrospective concerts in New York.

CONCERT AT PDS

Tuesday Night, Princeton Day School's Glee Club and Orchestra will present their annual winter concert on Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the upper gymnasium on the campus. Featured work will be the "Gloria" by Antonio Vivaldi.

The school's award-winning Madrigal singers will also be on the program, singing a group of seasonal selections. Frank Jacobson, Head of the PDS Music Department, will conduct. The concert is open to the public without charge.

PIANISTS TO PLAY

At Woolworth Center. Two pianists will give recitals in Woolworth Center this weekend under the sponsorship of the Friends of Music at Princeton.

Robert Taub, a Princeton graduate in the Class of 1977, will be heard Saturday at 8:30, and Patricia Arden, coordinator of the piano program at Princeton and a teacher, will perform Sunday at 3. Both concerts are free and open to the public.

Mr. Taub received his masters degree from Juilliard this year and the highest award in piano. He is now studying for his doctoral degree as a Danforth Fellow at Juilliard. While at Princeton, he performed on numerous occasions under the auspices of the Friends of Music and was heard in a concerto performance with the Princeton University Orchestra.

For his program on Saturday, Mr. Taub will play "Sonata" (1948) by Leon Kirchner; "Sonata in E Major, Opus 109 by Beethoven; "Responses" (1973) by Seymour Shifrin; "Three Compositions for Piano" (1947) by Milton Babbitt and Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz" (1859). He played the contemporary pieces in September when he was one of 12 international artists to compete in a week-long series of solo recitals devoted to contemporary music at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Arden has a bachelor's and master's degree in piano from the University of Michigan where she was a member of the piano faculty. She performed extensively throughout Indiana and Michigan before moving to Princeton. She has given several recitals in Philadelphia, and Sunday's concert will mark her fifth appearance in Woolworth Center under the auspices of the Friends.

For Sunday's concert, Mrs. Arden will perform J.S. Bach: Capriccio in B-flat Major; Beethoven: Rondo a Capriccio in G Major, Opus 129; Scriabin: Sonata No. 9, Opus 68; Chopin: Etudes, Opus 10 and Opus 25; Schumann: Carnaval, Opus 9.

COMPOSER: Warren Martin's humorous "True Story of Cinderella" will be performed Tuesday evening at 8 at the Westminster Choir College Playhouse.

Princeton University, Mr. Parham hopes to make a career of the organ and/or voice. A late comer to the organ, he has studied piano for eight years and organ for four. The recital will include works by Bach, Handel, Buxtehude, Sweelinck and Mendelssohn.

There will be no admission charge, and the public is invited.

COMIC WORK PLANNED

At Choir College. Ten faculty, three alumni and two present graduate students will take part in the "True Story of Cinderella" at Westminster Choir College on Tuesday, December 12, at 8 in the College's Playhouse. The public is invited at no charge.

The "True Story" is a humorous cantata for 12 solo voices, narrator and piano, both words and music of which were written by Warren Martin. The cast includes Judith Nicosia, James McKeever, Marvin Keenze, Frauke Haasemann, Mary Kemp, Suzan Pratt, Sharon Alexander, Louis Laverty, Tom Faracco, George Steinhoff, Dan Pratt and Barry Ellison.

Mr. Martin will be the pianist, and Erik Routley will narrate. Daniel Beckwith will toll the 12 bells of Cinderella's midnight which fit into the musical score. "Cinderella" was written in 1951 for a particular class of graduate students with good solo voices.

The work is intended to be a spoof on musical styles from strict canon, to marches, folk song, jazz and Broadway.

Mr. Warren is a singer, pianist and organist. He is a former conductor of the Westminster Choir and musical director of the college. He is also a string player, theory professor and composer.

OPERA WORKSHOP SET

"Cosi fan tutte", or "Thus Do They All" in English is subtitled "The School for Lovers" which is a lighthearted opera buffa on an Italian text by Da Ponte. It was first performed in Vienna at the Burg Theater in 1790, but not given in this country until 1922. It will be sung in English.

Tiger Quintet to Play Two Games in Jadwin After St. John's Loss Drops Its Record to 2-1

Princeton's basketball team, which found Saturday night that strong opposition is currently good enough to embarrass it, will play twice in Jadwin Gym in the next four days. The Tigers will face Seton Hall this Wednesday at 8 (with the game televised over Channels 23 and 52) and will entertain Manhattan Saturday at 8.

The Villanova game in Philadelphia next Tuesday at 9 may also be televised on Channel 17 (check newspapers for listings). Fordham will be in Jadwin Thursday, December 14, at 8, with a trip to Piscataway the following Saturday to play Rutgers (also on Channels 23 and 52.)

Neither of the next two opponents is particularly strong, but the Tigers have enough problems of their own so that victory in either case will be a solid achievement. Seton Hall, 16-11 last winter, was beaten by Princeton at South Orange, 70-58. The Pirates are paced this year by Nick Galis, a fine guard who averaged 17 points last season.

Manhattan, which has not been on the Tigers' schedule since 1919, returns in recognition of the somewhat loosely-organized New Jersey-New York "7", a new conference in which for the first time this winter each team will play at least one game against the other six. The Jaspers, 12-14 a year ago, have a new coach in Brian Mahoney and return four of their starters, including high-scoring JoJo Walters at guard and 6-9 Mike Bruno at center.

Villanova, a 58-56 victor in Jadwin last December, went on to compile a fine 23-9 mark. Losing seven lettermen, two of them starters, the Wildcats have a young squad but figure to give Princeton more than it can handle in the game at the Palestra.

First Half Was Close. No worse off at the half than trailing by 33-30, the Tigers were outscored by St. John's Saturday night, 38 to 21, and that made for a 71-51 defeat on the victors' count in Queens.

The Bob Roma-Tom Young combination, an on-again, off-again thing, lacked balance this time, Roma getting 16 but Young being held to 3, while the Redmen's center, Wayne McKoy, connected for 22.

St. John's played a more aggressive game, yet managed to stay out of foul trouble, the Orange and Black making only three free throws during the contest. In contrast, Princeton ran into its usual foul problems, and when freshman Neil Christel fouled out before the final period was half gone, St. John's began to pull away steadily.

The home team hit at a fine pace of 56 percent during the first period, and continued to shoot well throughout the evening. In contrast, the Tigers dropped from 45 percent in the first 20 minutes to a mediocre 30 percent in the decisive second half.

Roma's 16 points were high for Princeton, and his co-captain, John Lewis, was the only other player in double figures with 10. Roger Schmitt, who played well in the 82-66 triumph over Wagner earlier in the week, was held to 6. Sophomore Steve Mills, who pairs with Lewis at guard, managed only a lone field goal.

Second-Half Rally Wins. During the intermission at the Wagner game, George Boccanfuso and his maintenance crew were tinkering with the Jadwin Gym scoreboard, which wasn't functioning properly. In the Jadwin Gym locker room, Pete Carril was tinkering with the Tiger basketball team, which wasn't operating smoothly either.

When the second-half tapoff went to Princeton, the scoreboard was able to record every point of the ensuing outburst, one that saw the home team break away from a 35-all tie with 10 unanswered points and a 16-3 surge in the first four minutes that put the final outcome clearly in perspective. The Orange and Black's lead ran as high as 17 points before the half was half gone, as it rounded out the evening with a sizzling 66 percent floor average to finish at 57 percent on the night.

Wagner, an astonishing upset victor over nationally-ranked Alabama to its credit and able to average 85 points in its first three games before being pared down to 66 in Jadwin, broke away to a seven-point lead (21-14) as the visitors hit well from the outside and took advantage of very early foul problems that again beset Princeton. But Schmitt's steady pops over the 1-3-1 zone and a couple of key baskets by Young led the way to a brief 31-29 lead for the home team before the half ended in a deadlock.

With Christel, Roma and Mills all saddled with three personals in the first half, Pete Carril used eight players before the intermission, a total he has often failed to equal in an entire game in the past. He also changed his game-plan for the second time this season when he went with Young at center and Roma at forward, the combination doing much to trigger the outburst when the final half began.

Schmitt achieved a rare statistic when the 20 points he made doubled the number he scored all last season. A standout as a schoolboy in Kansas City, Mo., he started for the freshmen three years ago, averaging 14.5, but did not fit into Carril's plans in a reserve capacity in either his sophomore or junior years.

The 6-11 Young had a field day with the shorter Wagner quintet, which had no one within eight to 10 inches guarding him under the basket. The result was a series of rifle-like passes eight or nine feet above ground level which Young snared unmolested and dropped in. He was seven of eight plus a free throw for 15 points in the 22 minutes he played. Mills and Roma added 15 and 13 to give the victors four men in double figures.

SPORTS In Princeton

SKATERS WILL TRAVEL

To Boston This Weekend. Even with the .500 mark at 2-2 but still looking for its first victory over an opponent in its own ECAC Division (I), Princeton's hockey team will play the first or eight consecutive road games this weekend. The Tigers will face Northeastern Friday night in the Boston Arena and 24 hours later will go against Coach Jim Higgins's alma mater, Boston University.

There is a possibility that the Tigers can break even on this expedition, not an easy assignment for a young team playing away from home. Northeastern, 10-17-1 last winter, may be an opponent they can handle. The Huskies won, 7-6, in Baker Rink last December, but a good defensive effort against them Friday could swing the balance in Princeton's favor.

B.U. is something else again, particularly on its home ice. The Terriers led Division I with a 21-1 mark and were an astonishing 30-2 overall. On the way to the Eastern title title, however, they were derailed in the semi-finals by Providence and had to settle for the consolation championship.

Undismayed, they not only qualified for the NCAA Tournament but won the national championship, beating Boston College, the Eastern winner, in the finals, 5-3.

Three of their top four scorers return, as does goalie Jim Craig, ranked third in the East last winter with a goals-allowed average of 3.72. In one of their top showings last winter, the Tigers were barely beaten here, 4-3, but the odds are not that they will do as well in Boston Saturday.

Freshman Top Scorer. Two more goals and an assist against Middlebury Friday night in Baker Rink gave freshman Ken Koenig nine points in four games, establishing him as the early leader on the Princeton scoring ladder. His play paced the Orange and Black to a predictable 6-3 triumph over the Division II Vermont

Tigers Land Five on All-Ivy Football Team; Crissy First Sophomore Honored in 21 Years

Chris Crissy and four other Princeton players were named this week to the All-Ivy football team. Selected with him were Co-Captain Greg Bauman, a unanimous choice who repeated from the previous year at guard; center Andy Stephens, who started all 27 games of his varsity career for the Tigers; middle guard Pete Funke and Bill Powers as the punter.

The selection of Crissy in his first year on the Tiger varsity is particularly significant, because he is only the second Princeton sophomore to receive such recognition since the balloting by the eight coaches was instituted 23 years ago. The only other Princetonian so honored was the late Dan Sachs, a running back who had a fine season as a sophomore before the debilitating disease that later took his life began to affect him.

Neither Cosmo Iacavazzi or Charlie Gogolak, who achieved All-American status before they graduated, were All-Ivy as sophomores. Crissy thus may become the first Princeton player to achieve first-team status for three years.

Further indication of the esteem in which he is held by Ivy coaches came in the balloting for the Bushnell Cup, which was won by Dartmouth quarterback Buddy Teevens as the league's top player. Crissy received two third-place votes, the only player returning to action next fall to be so recognized. All the others whom the coaches considered worthy of one or more votes, in addition to Teevens, are seniors: Joe Holland, Cornell; John Spagnola, Yale; Ralph Polillio, Harvard; Denis Grosvenor, Penn; and Mark Whipple, Brown.

Dartmouth with six players led in the All-Ivy selections, but Princeton tied for second with Yale, each placing five men. Brown had four, Columbia, Cornell and Harvard, two each, with Penn unrepresented.

The Tigers landed senior linebacker Andy Hvidston on the second team, while honorable mention went to another sophomore, defensive end Paul Van Pelt, who broke into the lineup in mid-season. The five first-team selections are the most accorded Princeton since 1969, when Jake McCandless led the Tigers to a triangular tie for the title with Dartmouth and Yale. Two years ago, Princeton did not place a single player on the first team.

Figures Don't Lie. The problems that Princeton had on the football field this season are reflected in the final team and individual statistics released by the Ivy league. The Tigers, who finished seventh in the standings with a 1-4-2 record, were last in offense, fifth in defense, sixth in points scored and fifth in points allowed.

Individual performances, too, were unimpressive, except for Powers and Crissy. Powers, the Tiger defensive back who doubled as the punter, led the league in kicking with a 39.1-yard average. Crissy placed fourth in points scored with six touchdowns for 36. He trailed Joe Holland, with 78, Jeff Dufresne of Dartmouth and Ralph Polillio with 42 apiece.

Brown's first-place total offense yardage of 368 per game was more than 100 better than the last-place Tigers, who managed only 265. Yale, tops defensively, allowed its opponents 236 per game, compared to the 331 Princeton yielded to finish fifth.

The Orange and Black averaged 16 points against its seven opponents to place sixth in this department, Dartmouth's 24 points per game taking the honors. Princeton yielded 21 points, fifth best, whereas Yale's 11 topped the league.

Brown of Harvard Big Gun. Total offense of 1478 yards, a 211 average, put Larry Brown, the Harvard quarterback, on top in total offense. He was trailed by Teevens and Holland (who did not throw a single pass).

All three will graduate, so the top returning player on offense will be Dufresne, who ranked seventh. Because Ken Barrett and Steve Reynolds, the Princeton quarterbacks, both played about half the season, Crissy, another non-passer, topped them both with a 73-yard per game average. That was good for 12th place.

In percentage of pass completions, Teevens was well out in front with a fine .618 average. Barrett's .500 was good for fifth, Reynolds was seventh with .484.

Holland's 1213 yards gained rushing were nearly double the total of Dufresne, in second place with 691. Crissy's 512 placed seventh, while fullback Gary Larson ranked 13 with 267. Dartmouth's Dave Shula, whose acrobatics wrecked Princeton, was the top receiver with 29. Larson with 20 and Crissy with 19 placed fifth and sixth in this category.

Statistics are often painted as being sufficiently open to interpretation to tell whatever story best suits the occasion. Here, they do not seem to lie.

Dartmouth, the 1978 champion, was first in scoring offense, second in scoring defense, second in yards allowed, fourth in yards gained, and was well represented at the top individually by Teevens, Dufresne and Shula. The Tigers' seventh place finish was reflected in equally accurate fashion by the final performance figures they compiled.

s sextet, which was playing its first game of the season.

Koenig's first goal with eight minutes left in the opening round was followed by defenseman Ron Sherstobitoff's first of the year on a power play. It was the only time in seven such opportunities that the Tigers managed to beat Middlebury's freshman goalie.

Princeton added two in each of the next two periods, the scores going to freshman center Chuck Huggins, Koenig again, senior forward Craig Tresham and freshman forward Drew Forbes. The home team had a 4-0 lead, with Bob Mann, the Penn transfer student in the goal, before a flurry of three in the final period by the losers. The Tigers generally dominated the ice, getting off 64 shots to 29 for Middlebury.

The final Middlebury goal had a pleasant Princeton tinge. It was scored by sophomore Carl Erdman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Erdman of Winfield Road, and grandson of Princeton's six-time mayor.

Tigers Fade at New Haven. The fine play which had held Dartmouth to a 2-1 triumph here three days earlier was largely absent at New Haven last week as the Tigers trailed 5-1 and then could not maintain a rally that had cut their deficit to 5-4. "We didn't come close to giving a good 60-minute performance," was Coach Jim Higgins's rueful comment. "When we came back to the ice for the third period down by only one goal, I thought we had a real chance, but the necessary team-work just wasn't there."

A short-lived lead that freshman Dave Clark produced with a stuff shot after skating around the Eli cage at 4:19 of the first period was followed by five straight Yale goals. Princeton then narrowed the gap in the final half of the middle round with scores by Jim Farrell, Craig Tresham and Trevor Kilburn but could not maintain the momentum. A hat trick plus two assists by Yale junior Gary Lawrence was far more than the losers could match.

Shots on goal were unusually low, 22-21 for Yale, with the Tigers frequently missing the target entirely in a manner that dismayed Higgins. Silcox, who had stopped 95 percent of the shots taken at him by Army and Dartmouth, dropped to 67 percent against the Elis as his lack of game experience began to show.

caught the Zebras and went on to win.

Trotman said he was particularly satisfied with the defense. Lacking strength at guard, Trotman had said he would switch to a zone defense this year. "The kids didn't like it," he said.

Back to Man-to-Man. "We went back to man-to-man. They really worked at it and I was pleasantly surprised. Maybe it is just their getting in their own minds what they have to do to win."

As in a scrimmage with Hillsborough, in which the Blue and White made the normal first-game errors, said Trotman, he was impressed with the play of Jeff Marshall on defense and in bringing the ball up court.

"We need one guy who doesn't panic under pressure," Trotman continued, and in Marshall he may have found his man. He added that his team hasn't been pressed so the anticipated problem of bringing the ball up hasn't surfaced yet.

Trotman also cited the play of senior Bob Flippin. "He's gaining more confidence and he's much better on defense. That's what has been holding him back in the past."

PDS QUINTET HAS HOPES

For Better Season. "We were over confident, didn't concentrate and I didn't coach well," is the way Princeton Day basketball coach Alan Taback sums up last season, which saw the Panthers lose 11 of their first 15 games and then rally to finish at .500 for the year (12-12).

The team did manage to win another State Prep "B" title, but to a man used to winning around 18-20 games a season this was small consolation. Taback is not going to rest until he has the Blue and White back up where he feels it belongs, a tough schedule notwithstanding.

A few years ago it was much easier to come by that many victories, because the schedule included several of those weaker prep schools in the state. Now most of those have been replaced by tougher opponents, but Taback and his players want to regain that lost stature.

Three starters return, beginning with junior co-captains, Carl Hill at guard and Jamie Bartolomie, a 6'5 forward. Hill has the potential to be one of the greatest players this area has ever produced. Already he has been selected as one of the top 100 basketball players in the country by Street and Smith's basketball preview.

Third man back is James Cox, 6'3, who can play either forward or guard. The center slot will be manned by the lone senior on the team Vic Kuzmich, 6'5, who backed up Andy Sanford last year.

Vying for the fifth spot are a pair of juniors, Billy Ross, the top jayvee player last year, and Vince Pocino. Pocino has the inside track at the moment, but both will see plenty of action. Randy Shelton, who saw his football season cut short, will also be in the line-up much of the time. The 6'4 junior can play either forward or guard, and he showed marked improvement near the end of last season.

Another football player, Tim Murdoch, a 6'2 forward, will give Taback a third capable reserve, and 6'5 Bob Leahy will back up Kuzmich at center. Sophomores Jamie Bonini and Andy Charan will split their playing time between the varsity and the jayvee.

"We're working much harder than last year," Taback commented. The team has already had three scrimmages and a fourth is scheduled for Wednesday with St. Anthony's. Earlier the Panthers went up against one of the top high school teams in the state in Montclair, and lost decisively, but did not get blown out.

The first game will be against Adelphi in the Peddie Tournament this Friday. The three-day affair includes Lawrenceville, Hun, Loomis, Chestnut Hill and Collegiate, in addition to the host school.

WHAT LIES AHEAD?

For PDS Hockey Team. Two years ago the Princeton Day hockey team won only five of 15 games, last year the Panthers took 10 of 20 to reach the .500 mark. And this season any improvement on that depends on how fast the team develops.

"Traditionally, we have had strength up the middle," commented coach Harry Rulon-Miller. "But this year we will have to work to develop it." Rulon-Miller also hopes to develop puck control and accurate passing in his players, two important ingredients in the making of a successful team.

PDS will go with four lines, led by the trio of senior captain Mike Shannon, left wing, sophomore John Drezner at

SQUASH TOURNEY HERE

At Jadwin Gym. Princeton University will hold its 1st Invitational Women's Intercollegiate Racquets Tournament Friday through Sunday at Jadwin Gym.

Both a feed-in tournament and a regular tournament are planned. The finals will be held Sunday morning at 10 for the feed-in and 11 for the regular.

Sixteen of the top collegiate players in the country have been selected by the tournament committee to participate. From Princeton University are Kris Kinney, seeded number one for the event; Lea Tilney, seeded number four; Joan Maguire and Nancy Gengler.

center and junior Doug Matthews at right wing. Shannon was the team's high scorer as a junior last season with 14 tallies.

The defense will have senior Ward Taggart, junior Larry Pierson and sophomore Kevin Johnson, with freshman Sam Woodworth available for spot duty to gain experience.

Senior Jeff Johnson, the starting goalie for the past two years, has been unable to practice, because of a knee operation last month, but he is expected to join the team later this month. In the meantime, Phil Maltese is handling the goal tending. Freshman Roger Holloway, a third goalie, has shown some early season promise.

An informal scrimmage against Montclair High School was a rather lackluster affair, Rulon-Miller reported, and he feels his skaters need to be more aggressive.

The season will get underway this Wednesday with a game against a new opponent, Conestoga High School in Philadelphia, which Rulon-Miller termed a good representative high school team. That will be followed by Pingry on Friday, and Rulon-Miller is hopeful those two contests will tune the team up for the St. Mark's tournament December 14 and 15.

FIRST GAME WEDNESDAY

For Hun School Quilnetel. When the Hun School basketball team opens its season this Wednesday afternoon at 3 against visiting Blair Academy, it will be the first time in four years that the Raiders will take to the court without superstar Ron Payton.

For coach Dave Leete, the loss was total. Not only is he without Payton, who scored more than 2,000 points in his career before departing for Syracuse, but every other starter, including his sixth man, Brian Lee.

The four other starters missing, who with Payton compiled a 24-4 record last year, the best ever for Leete, are Bill Comly, Bob Imocenzi, Pete Black and Craig Darvin. Leete cannot recall ever losing his first six players in a single season.

So with a squad that is untested and inexperienced, one in which all but three are seniors, Leete can look forward to a grim season. Not necessarily. After three pre-season scrimmages, against teams that Leete admitted were weaker, Hun, nonetheless, looked better each time out and Leete reported he is cautiously optimistic about the year ahead.

Powell to be Leader. Part of that optimism had to come from the presence of Arvie Powell. The 6-2 Powell, who quarterbacked the Hun football team this fall, is a post-graduate student from Ewing where he was a 1,000-point player. "We're looking for Powell to score and to be our team leader," acknowledged Leete. "From an ability standpoint, he's tested and proved out; everyone else hasn't played."

Seniors on the varsity include 6-5 Ken Stoddard, a backup to Payton; 6-3 Mark DeLorenzo, a backup to Comly, both of whom will play forward or center; a pair of 5-11 guards, Dan Eisenstein and

Tom Murray, After Building Up PHS Wrestling Program, Is Angry over Elimination of Sport at Middle School Level

Last year the Princeton High School wrestling team did it all. It won the annual Mercer County Irish Invitational Meet at Notre Dame High School; it won the Colonial Valley Conference Championship where it was undefeated; it won 16 of 17 dual meet matches, losing only to Delran by two points; its standout 108-pounder, Matt Wilkinson, advanced to the NJSIAA state wrestling competition held at Princeton University's Jadwin Gym — only the second PHS wrestler to go that far. It was by any standard the Little Tigers best year ever on the mat.

Wilkinson returns for his senior year and will be an early favorite to win a state title. There was a rush of candidates to carry on the Blue and White's preeminence in the sport. Coach Tom Murray is a happy man. Shockingly, only Wilkinson's return is true. At first call, only 17 showed up for practice — later, through some recruiting efforts by Murray and assistant coach Jim Beachell that increased to 24 — and Murray says he is mad as hell about what they have done to the program he has tried so hard to build up.

"Bitter as Hell." Murray has no hesitation in pointing to the cause. "I said when they killed the Middle School program three years ago, it would kill me and it has. I'm bitter as hell about it. I've got a nice schedule ... (two newcomers this year are North Hunterdon and Hillsborough) all I've got to do is find some kids to wrestle. "In any sports program if you say you are committed to excellence, you have to start them young. It's the same in any subject; you don't teach algebra before you teach math. You can't do that."

As it is now, Murray explained, wrestling is totally new to freshmen. They are very hesitant about coming out, he said.

TOUGH START FRIDAY
For PHS Quintet. "We did very well, surprisingly enough," commented Princeton High School coach Marv Trotman this week after his team's second scrimmage Saturday with New Brunswick. The Little Tigers have another scrimmage with East Brunswick before their opener Friday evening at 8 against Franklin Township on the Franklin court. The Warriors

"I feel the Middle School program was most important. What they learn there can make or break a program. Now, even if they brought it back it would still ruin me for three or four years."

Murray added that the middle school boys in the wrestling program would come over to the high school to work out. Their interest was high. "We built up the program here to where it was just about the best in the county. They've taken it away and I'm bitter as hell."

Opener Saturday. Princeton High will open a 17-dual meet season Saturday afternoon when it visits Lawrenceville School for a 2:30 match. Its home opener will be next Wednesday evening at 8 against Woodrow Wilson High School from Pennsylvania.

We don't have too many but what we have are good," observed Murray of this year's squad, many of whom are juniors. Heading the list, of course, is Wilkinson who will return at 108. He is captain of the team and starting his fourth year on the varsity.

Others who have had varsity experience are juniors Bob Schmidt at 135 pounds, John Tazelaar, 129, Bruce Cobb, 122, and Luciano Procaccini, 170. Senior Gary Carnevale returns at 158. His win was a key decision in the crucial match with West Windsor last year that powered PHS to the CVC title.

Murray has no one to compete in the 188-pound class and will be weak again in heavyweight, where the only candidate is 220-pound sophomore Marco Nini, who never wrestled before. "We're going to make him experienced fast," said Murray.

Mike Santoro, a senior, seems to have a headlock on the 148-pound class, while junior Ben Navarro, up from the jayvee squad, is the leading candidate for 141 pounds. "He's going to be a good one," said Murray.

Two freshmen are battling for the 101-pound berth, Brian have basically the same team that defeated PHS by 10 points in last year's opener, Trotman commented.

Moreover, Franklin is a Group 4 school while PHS is Group 2, so there is always a David-versus-Goliath aspect to this game. But the progress that PHS has shown so far this year, especially on defense, has caused Trotman, a self-confessed "eternal optimist," to predict, "Our kids have the capability to stay with anybody."

Tuesday afternoon, in one of five 3:34 contests on the schedule, the Little Tigers will entertain Ewing in their home opener.

PHS started off slowly — it felt behind by as much as 20 in the New Brunswick scrimmage — reported Trotman, but when the Blue and White finally got moving, he added, "we played very well." PHS

O'Grady and John Miller, and Murray reports "both are pretty even now." Jason Jones will be behind Wilkinson at 108.

Schwartz at 115. At 115 pounds, Eric Schwartz, a quick and aggressive junior, says Murray, is being opposed by junior Ken Henderson and sophomore Neil Flanagan. Cobb will be starting his third year on the varsity at 122, but Murray reports he is worn out from cross-country running and is a question mark right now. Tony Cedeno, who "doesn't lack for any quickness or strength" but who is inexperienced, is waiting in the wings.

Tazelaar, the veteran at 129, hopes to return at that weight but may be too heavy, says Murray, Sean Keenan, who wrestled at 106 pounds on the jayvee team last year, is a backup.

Schmidt, whom Murray claims could be the best 135-pounder in the county, faces competition from junior Brent Robinson, who wrestled in a few varsity matches last year.

Junior Billy Sapoch and senior John Lowrance are vying with Navarro for the 141-pound starting role, while Chris Wells, a senior, and freshman Mike Ciefelli are competing against Santoro at 148 pounds.

Junior Ralph Sferra, strong but inexperienced, out for the first time ("I don't know why he waited so long," remarked Murray) and James Keigler, a sophomore, are slotted in the 158 pound division.

"FOR THE MONEY,
WE DON'T SEE ANYTHING THAT CAN TOUCH IT."
—ROAD AND TRACK, ON THE AUDI 5000

Here are excerpts from ROAD & TRACK Magazine's December, 1977 road test report on the Audi 5000: "The 5000 can double as a comfortable and luxurious family sedan capable of hauling five people for long distances and as a sports sedan that will provide a great deal of driving entertainment. And for the money, we don't see anything that can touch it."

"Our subjective seat-of-the-pants impressions of the 5000's handling were borne out by our 700-ft. slalom test where the car turned in a speed of 56.8 mph. This is...nearly 4 mph better than the Peugeot 604 (July, 1977)."

"...damned impressive on the test track and on the road and should have little trouble keeping up with or even surpassing other more expensive sedans."

"The ride is comfortable on every surface and there is plenty of wheel travel to allow dips and culverts to be taken at speed without upsetting the Audi's aplomb."

"The optional air conditioning is almost too effective and will blow gobs of truly cold air almost immediately. The heater, too, is quite efficient..."

In Two Tournaments. Hun will have little time to rest after its opener. This weekend it will participate in the Peddie Invitational Tournament, which has eight teams from New Jersey and New York vying for the tournament crown -- Hun was ousted last year in the first round by Collegiate of New York -- and Tuesday it will play host to Lawrence High in a 3:30 contest.
Next Thursday, it will participate in the eight-team Hill Tournament in Pottstown, Pa.
LAWRENCEVILLE 1-0
In Hockey. With a strong nucleus returning from last year's squad and a solid group of newcomers, the Lawrenceville varsity hockey squad should have no trouble matching last year's 14-14 record. The Larries began their season last Saturday with a 5-4 victory over the Jersey Aces, a team consisting largely of former Philadelphia Little Flyers players. Sophomore John Olin opened the scoring for Lawrenceville with a slap shot from the blue line, and when John Martine and Kip Sparrow scored in the first period, the Larries had a 3-0 lead.

After a Geoff Hamlin goal in the second period, the Aces rebounded midway through the third period for two quick goals to deadlock the score at 4-4. However, Lawrenceville's Chuck Olin secured the victory, as he directed a Matt Weeden pass into the net with 30 seconds left in the game.
